

DISREGARD STOP SIGNS: ONE KILLED

New Frankfort Boy Scout Troop Will Be Installed February 2nd

For the first time in ten years Scouting has been revived in Frankfort. The result has been that Frankfort now has a new Troop, No. 68, sponsored by the Frankfort Civic club.

Installation of the new Troop will take place in the Frankfort gymnasium Friday evening, February 2, at which time ten boys will receive Certificates of Membership and their Tenderfoot badges. The members of the Troop Committee and the Scoutmaster will also receive their certificates and the Charter will be presented to the sponsoring institution.

The program for the installation will be handled by several groups of Scouts and their leaders throughout the Indian Trail district of the Potawattomi Trails Council. The ceremonies will be in charge of True Daniels, Tinley Park, vice-chairman of the Indian Trail district; Harold G. Boltz, Scout Executive, and Edward Klemm, Scoutmaster of Troop 50, Markham.

Beginning at 7:30 a special ceremony prepared by Mr. Daniels and assisted by several Scouts will precede the installation proper. Boy Scouts of Troop 50 will then conduct the Tenderfoot Investiture Ceremony. The ceremony includes the lighting of seventeen candles, which represent various points in Scouting. The closing feature of the Tenderfoot Investiture Ceremony is to be conducted by Mr. Wm. Breidert, Jr., Scoutmaster of Troop 68, Frankfort. Immediately following the presentation of the Troop Charter will be conducted by Scout Executive Harold G. Boltz. The Charter is to be presented to Mr. H. J. Lambrecht, president of the Frankfort Civic club. The program will be concluded with a colorful flag ceremony in charge of Mr. Daniels.

The following boys are members of the new Scout group: John T. Becker, Clark G. Bennett, Warren Bobzin, Eugene Bogdon, Willard L. Eberhard, Billy Folkers, Grant B. Geuther, Calvert E. Health, Jr., Dale Warning, Kenneth P. Wise.

Wm. Breidert, Jr., is the Scoutmaster of the Troop. The committee consists of George Sangmeister, chairman, William C. Bennett, Herbert P. Folkers, Edward H. Vollrath, Edward J. Warning.

It is expected that a large number of Scouts, leaders and friends of Scouting from various communities in the Indian Trail district will be present to witness the installation of the new Troop. The public is invited to attend.

To Hold Auditions For Frankfort Amateur Show

Auditions for the amateur show which the Frankfort Civic club is sponsoring the 15th and 16th of February will be held on Sunday, February 11, at the Frankfort school gym.

The amateur show presented last year made a very decided hit with the public and there has been a demand for another show this year. The program is now in the making and anyone wishing to take part in the program should attend the audition on the date named.

The Civic club feels confident that this year's performance will be equal if not better than the one of last year.

Watch for details as to the program and the features as well as special attractions.

Frankfort Municipal Skating Rink Is Attracting Skaters

Frankfort's public skating rink is now in full operation and is being well patronized by not only local but outside skaters as well.

The rink was flooded the past week by the Frankfort Fire Dept., and is in perfect shape. In order to make the rink available at night as well as in day, electric lights have been installed so that the rink is well lit at night.

To Build New Dance Hall

Gust Ziegler of New Lenox has plans under way for a dance hall to be added to the present tavern operated by Rube Tart, on Lincoln Highway in New Lenox. The new hall will be built to the north of the present structure.

GEO. J. HACKER LEAVES ESTATE OF $82,000

George J. Hacker late head of the New Lenox Lumber and Hardware Company, left an estate worth $82,000, according to the petition for the administration of the estate filed with Probate Clerk Donald C. Lang the past week.

Mr. Hacker, who died December 12 left no will and his widow, Mrs. Fannie F. Hacker, in her petition, asked that Fred G. Krog, cashier of the New Lenox State bank be appointed administrator of the estate.

The estate consists of $32,000 in real estate and cash and $50,000 in stocks and bonds. The heirs who will share in this vicinity are the widow and four daughters, Eunice Vally, Myrtle Batson, Evelyn Whitaker, of New Lenox; and Muriel Hacker, Mokena.

Mokena Youth's Stock Entry Wins Championship

Chester Ebert, 26 year old Mokena man, is getting places in the live stock world. He is a member of the Frankfort-New Lenox 4-H club, and was awarded first place in the Junior livestock contest in the 1939 International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago on his short horn steer entry. Last week he won the reserve grand championship with his animal, Lindenwood, in the national western stock show in Denver.

Chester's steer had already won him many prizes, including the international winner in his division, shorthorns weighing 1,000 to 1,500 pounds, and honors in the national 4-H club competitions.

The steer was judged champion at the Illinois State Fair last summer and the county champion at the Will County Fair at Peotone and placed in A division at the Will County 4-H contest at Frankfort Grove.

Mokena PTA Observe Dad's Nite

"Dad's Night" sponsored by the Mokena PTA at the Mokena school gym Tuesday night was exceptionally well attended. As each father entered the gym he was presented with a pin in the shape of a miniature boy doll to wear on his coat. At the close of the meeting the fathers were asked to name the dolls and Irvin Howes won with the name "Pa."

Mr. Maskers of Chicago was the speaker of the evening. Frank Hirsch, Jr., sang "My Kid" and was accompanied on the piano by Andrew Buschell.

Dean Rueckert gave a report on the plan of holding a series of dances at the school gym for the pupils in the grades and in the high school. The first dance will be held in a week or two. Watch for further particulars.

A lovely luncheon was served by Mrs. James Eggerton, Mrs. Raymond McGuire, Mrs. Dean Rueckert and Mrs. Fred Rauch.

The PTA is proud to report that "Dad's Night" brought out many dads who have not been seen at previous PTA gatherings and it is now hoped that they will continue to attend future meetings.

When Will Mokena Skating Rink Open?

Mokena youths who like to skate are disappointed that the much talked of skating rink on the school grounds is not in shape for use. A donation toward the cost of building the rink was received sometime ago and the young folks are asking the question "Why is the rink unfinished?" If the rink is not put in shape soon the skating season will be over, say the skaters.

To Break Ground For New Church

The new Baptist church congregation organized recently in the Lincoln Estates expect to break ground for a new church edifice in March.

Pinochle Party

A pinochle and bunco party will be held in the St. Mary Hall in Mokena on Wednesday night, Jan. 31 at 8 p. m. Prizes will be awarded and lunch will be served.

New Hardware Store Will Open In Mokena Feb. 3rd

Orville Werner is preparing to open a new hardware store in the former Hohenstein implement store building on Front street, in Mokena, Saturday, February 3. This property was purchased by the late George J. Hacker, New Lenox, some time ago and last summer he had it completely remodeled and made a nice up-to-date store out of it, with living quarters in connection.

Mr. Werner has his hardware stock neatly arranged in attractive bins and on counters with the price of each article clearly displayed. His prices compare favorably and in instances even lower than those of larger stores. He is also stocking a large line of paint and paint accessories. He plans running a special sale each month on certain hardware items.

An up-to-date hardware store has been needed in Mokena for some time. At one time Mokena had two hardware stores but none in recent years.

Watch for particulars and the grand opening advertisement. The store is to be known as Werner's Hardware Store.

F. D. R. Invited to Two-Bit Dinner

Inspired by the neighborly, non-partisan attitude of President Roosevelt in inviting several Republican leaders in Washington to the Jackson day $100 banquet, a reciprocal invitation has been extended to the President to attend the Lincoln day 25c banquet at Merner fieldhouse in Naperville, Monday, February 12, by Bernard M. Long, chairman.

The invitation follows: F. D. R. Roosevelt, President of the United States, White House, Washington, D. C. Honorable Sir:

On February 12, 1940, we, the people of the Eleventh Congressional district of the State of Illinois, are holding a non-partisan get-together sponsored by the DuPage county Republican Central committee. Due to your recent good-neighbor attitude toward some of our boys in Washington in extending to them an invitation to your Jackson day $100 dinner, we are extending to you, the President of the United States of America, personally, an invitation to our Lincoln day banquet—a two-bit affair. We expect about 5,000 of our people to be present. Enclosed are two tickets and a menu.

The Hon. Charles A. Plumley, lone congressman from the State of Vermont, will be speaker of the evening. His topic will, or should be, "How To Keep a State From Going Haywire in a Presidential Year." We would be very pleased to have you with us that evening.

Anticipating a favorable reply, I am,

Yours, very truly,
BERNARD M. LONG,
Chairman.

MENU

Barbecued Beef Sandwiches
Potato Chips
Pickles Cupcakes Coffee
Corn-cob pipes and Grainger
Tobacco for the men
Barber pole stick candy for the ladies.

Although the purpose of the Jackson day dinner was to raise funds for the Democratic campaign, the Lincoln rally will bring together 5,000 voters and nationally known Republican speakers interested in reducing the national debt. Thus the sponsors of the Naperville rally believe their banquet is more symbolic of the original Jackson day dinner which was held to celebrate the wiping out of the national debt, and should be enjoyed by the President, who some time ago expressed himself as favoring national economy.

The food at the Lincoln day banquet will be simple but hardy fare. Hon. Charles A. Plumley, veteran congressman of Norwich, Vt., will be the main speaker of the evening. Congressional, state and county candidates will make short talks before the microphone. While the guests are enjoying their evening's repast in the big North Central college fieldhouse, the best musical talent in the 11th Congressional district will perform for the diners. All who plan on attending the rally are urged to purchase tickets from their precinct committeeman as soon as possible.

Stephen Early, secretary to the President has notified the sponsors of the above named banquet that the President will not attend but that he is sending a check for 50 cents for tickets. The Democrats call the Republicans "copy cats."

Driver of Fruit Truck Dies In Hospital Following Collision With Automobile

Drunken Driver Flees From Scene Of Accident

While Paul Meyers of Mokena was driving south on Wolf Road last Wednesday night on his way home from a bowling game, a truck with only one head light burning and straddling the black line of the pavement failed to turn into the right lane and forced Mr. Meyers to take the ditch near the intersection of Wolf Road and 159th street north of Mokena. The truck however caught the Meyers car in the rear end, and damaged it badly, but the truck driver failed to stop and turned east on 159th street. Another truck heading west on 159th street saw Mr. Meyers predicament and stopped to see if he could be of some help. He said he had seen the other truck stopping at Keane and 159th street. The state police were summoned but upon arriving at Keane and 159th found the truck had gone. Driving east on 159th they soon found the truck ditched. The driver who was from Chicago was drunk. He was arrested and charged with leaving the scene of an accident and driving while drunk. His case was to have been tried in a Chicago court Thursday.

The intersection of Cicero ave., and the Lincoln highway west of Matteson was the scene of a fatal truck and auto accident last Friday when the drivers of both vehicles apparently failed to obey the stop signs at the intersection.

A truck loaded with Florida fruit from Joplin, Mo., crashed into an automobile driven by a party from North Liberty, Iowa. Wm. Pausch, of Joplin who was driving the fruit truck escaped injury, but E. J. Ryan, 28 years old, also of Joplin who was sleeping in the truck was fatally injured and died in the St. James hospital, Chicago Heights on Sunday night. The Iowa driver was also injured.

To Hold Farm Machinery Show

Farmers are invited to see a demonstration of the new Allis Chalmers farm equipment at the A. C. Bauch garage in Frankfort, Feb. 2 commencing at 10 a. m. Technicolor sound pictures of the new Allis Chalmers farm equipment in action will be shown. Free lunch will be served.

Will Speak At Gospel Tabernacle

Rev. A. Sorensen will be the speaker in the Gospel Temple on Clinton street in Joliet Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock. He will tell his personal life story of how he came out of a secret powerful Buddhist Order into the glorious liberty of Christ.

Services are held each evening at 7:45 o'clock in the Gospel Temple in Joliet. Everyone is welcome.

Automobile Skids Off Bridge

Edw. Schmaedeke, well known Orland auctioneer figured in an auto accident Wednesday when the car he was driving skidded on an icy road four miles from Naperville and dropped five feet from a bridge. The car was damaged, but Mr. Schmaedeke escaped injury.

Auction Dates

Winter Vacation Comes Into Its Own As U. S. Succumbs to 'January Blues'

By ARNOLD PETERS

(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

CHICAGO.—This is the season when northerners—from city and village alike—look glumly at gray skies and old snow. It's the time when a few southerners grow weary of winter weather that is just a repetition of summer.

There's only one explanation: It's January.

With the rest of the world at war, America's own folks are discovering its diverse vacation opportunities for the first time this winter. Hot, cold or dry—what'll you have? The United States boasts all of them!

Like the North, the Southwest is a country of vastness, only it's a different kind. Deserts that run on for miles suddenly break into weird and colorful mountain scenery. Nature, not bountiful here, has left instead the stimulant she forgot to leave elsewhere.

The Southwest is not expensive for your winter vacation. It's a country of dude ranches and horseback riding, where natives lead the same kind of saddle life as the visitors. All you need is blue jeans, a colored shirt and maybe a 10-gallon hat. Indian pueblos, missions and sun-baked houses give this ancient land a Latin-American air that is almost like a trip to old Mexico.

Cowboys Join the Dudes.

Fiestas, Indian tribal ceremonies and rodeos are the big tourist attractions. Until rodeo day, dude ranchers besport themselves on the same level as the quiet cowboys from the range. But when you see a cowboy on a horse and a calf in 22 seconds flat you know there's still a lot to be learned.

For the vacationist who wants all three—sand, snow and sun—California remains the No. 1 winter tourist mecca. As usual, the current season is drawing thousands of visitors to resort centers ranging from the Pacific beaches to desert-dry places like Death valley. In between, California offers the highly accessible snow slopes of Yosemite park, just a few hours from tropical sunshine.

Better pack up your bags and get going. It's winter vacation time and Dame Nature won't be kept waiting!

light picnics and sleighrides, its glowing cheeks and cheery firesides. Great for some folks—but not for the indolent. They'll take Florida in the winter, where a fellow can just lie on a sun-baked beach and forget.

Miami and other resort spots, both on the east and west coasts of Florida, report the biggest year in a decade. You can get what you want here: Millionaires, flowers and glamour on the east; shells, strands, oysters and mangrove trees on stilts in the west. Or try the gulf coast, just south of Dixie, which is a winter paradise in itself.

The Desert Is Bracing.

Only in the past five years has the southwest vacationland come into its own. Here, by contrast with the northland's exhilarating cold and the southland's soothing warmth, the visitor finds a bracing quality in the rare and dry desert air. It all depends on what you want.

And there's only one sure cure: A winter vacation!

Three strange and unrelated developments have placed American sand, sea and snow in the lime-light this year. It's the biggest winter vacation year we've ever seen, and that applies to the entire nation.

First there's the war. Wealthy vacationists who once wintered on the Riviera and points east are staying home this year. For the first time they've discovered that to "see America first" is really a practical idea.

Two Weeks Off—With Pay.

Second, the winter vacation is no longer a rich man's luxury. Overnight John Public has discovered (if he's an office worker) that he can take his two weeks off in January as well as June, and with no extra expense. If he's a northern farmer with just a few miscellaneous chores around the homestead, he'll find it almost as economical to head south for the winter. The vacation spots are catering these days to plain folks like you and me, who haven't a lot of money to spend.

Third, there's a refreshing new interest in outdoor sports. Fishing, horseback riding, swimming, skating, skiing—all the thrills of a winter or summer vacation are accessible in January if you'll look for them.

Outdoor Sports Boom.

It isn't many years since we holed in for northern winters and envied the southbound birds. Nowadays the winter resorts do a thriving trade all the way from New Hampshire's hills to Oregon's famed Timberline lodge on Mount Hood. The swish of skis vies with the ring of a skater's heel on crisply cold landscapes whose silence is broken only by the shouts of happy sportsmen. A great life, this, with its moon-

Billings Follows Trade

He Learned in Prison

SAN FRANCISCO.—A few blocks along Market street from the scene of the 1916 Preparedness day bombing which sent him to prison, Warren K. Billings repairs watches today.

He recently opened a tiny watchmaking shop to practice the trade he learned while serving 23 years in prison for the explosion which killed 10 persons and injured many.

Billings' life sentence was commuted by Gov. Culbert L. Olson. Tom Mooney had been pardoned nine months before.

With the first business he has ever owned Billings, 46 years old, hopes to support a home. He will marry Miss Josephine Rudolph of San Mateo.

Television May Help Generals Fight the War of Tomorrow

NEW YORK.—Television looms as a potent force in the high-gear war of the future, though World War II has come too early in television's development for any immediate use.

For the past few years military experts have been scrutinizing television and its adaptation for war purposes. It may become vitally important in eliminating the time lag in scouting and reconnaissance activities.

At present, aviation and aerial photography have speeded up reconnaissance to a tremendous degree. The most important thing for an army's general staff to know in war is what the enemy is doing, where it is located and in what troop dispositions. The airplane and camera provide the fastest possible means of transmitting this information, but it still takes time—too much time for "lightning war."

Television will make such information immediate. General staff will see enemy locations and movements picked up and transmitted from a reconnaissance plane, as they are at the moment and will be able to act without delay. There will be no waiting for developing and printing of aerial photographs, during which the situation might change, and there wouldn't be, harsh as it may seem, the absolute dependence on the reconnaissance plane returning.

To determine when and how television can best be used for military purposes, army chiefs are intensely interested in the status of television today.

What is that status?

According to engineers in the laboratories of Philco Radio & Television corporation, leaders in television development, general use of television is some years away.

"This is an age of miracles," was their consensus, "but not of overnight miracles. There must be time for orderly and sound development in television. Philco's television research engineers, for instance, have worked out many basic advances in the past 13 years and feel there are as many more fundamental improvements yet to be made, though they can not be accomplished at a faster pace.

"After all, the automotive industry took 20 years to attain a high degree of efficiency and widespread usage. Although radio broadcasting was first accomplished as early as 1906 it was many years before it reached the network stage. There has been a long interval of years between the first flight of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk and the regular transcontinental and transoceanic passenger flights of today."

Slow and inefficient aerial photography in wartime may give way to television—and it won't make much difference if the reconnaissance plane is brought down behind enemy lines.

According to these Philco engineers, "television can become the most important means of communication the world has ever known." Television receivers have already reached a comparatively high stage of efficiency, but there are several important scientific obstacles to be hurdled and goals to be achieved. A new technique for production of television programs must be found; many sources of interference, such as diathermy machines and automobiles without suppressors, must be corrected.

Then there is the problem of spanning distance. Television waves are now known to travel beyond the horizon but science has yet to find an effective control over waves at such a distance. Curvature of the earth obstructs further vision.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Reviewed by
CARTER FIELD

Congress believes that the real Roosevelt plans are not included in his messages . . . Foreign diplomats amazed at the character of the comment that greeted the message . . . Senator Taft's speech is expected to plague the administration.

WASHINGTON.—Congress expects a new rabbit to pop out of the Roosevelt hat. It isn't for a moment convinced that the President laid all his cards on the table in his message on "The State of the Union," or in his budget figures. It believes he is waiting the psychological moment. There is more time in which for him to turn around this year than has ever been the case in the past, because the national conventions are to be later this year, by at least a month, than they have been for many years.

Whether he runs himself, or intends to name his successor—and there is no dissent whatever from the contention that he wishes to do one or the other—he has not laid the groundwork in these first messages.

Just what is planned by the President nobody knows except the President himself, assuming he has made up his mind. He is talking about a lot of plans to different groups of advisers, but, as usual, not even the members of these intimate groups know whether he is really favoring their plan or some other. His enthusiasm in such conferences has always been unbounding. Participants for the first few times are always convinced that they have completely sold the "Chief." But if they continue long in the inner circle they gradually learn to discount this enthusiasm. They learn that the President is interested in almost everything, and perfectly willing to delve in an exhaustive manner into the details of some scheme which he will decide not to follow.

Hear About Various Plans, But There Is No Certainty

So there is no way of being sure what the rabbit will be this time, and senators and representatives do not profess to have any certainty, though they keep hearing about various plans. But they are mighty sure that, with his often demonstrated resourcefulness, Roosevelt is not going to make his fight to dominate the Democratic National convention and win the election on the issues stated in his message.

His defense of trade treaties, not only for their economic value but as a barrier to wars, and especially as an answer to the demands of the have-not nations for colonies, etc., was expected. It has been known for weeks that he would fight for this, and that renewal of the power to make these reciprocal trade agreements would be one of the tough fights of this session of congress.

But there is nothing new in his messages on which to carry the New Deal forward, as members of congress see it. This can be interpreted, as they view it, in only two ways. Either he has no idea—which is almost impossible to conceive of such a fertile brain—or he does not intend to inject any new controversial issue at this particular time.

There is even some skepticism about the amount of space the President devoted to arguments for continuance of the trade-agreement policy. It is true that this is the outstanding fight in plain sight as congress opens. But some shrewd observers believe that the President purposely stressed it for another reason—to divert attention from the fact that he is not proposing any new plan for curing the ills of the country, of which the most outstanding is unemployment.

Message Has Varied Meaning For Foreign Diplomats

Foreign diplomats in Washington are amazed at the character of the comment that has greeted President Roosevelt's message to congress. As they see it, the most important parts of the message have been almost ignored. So interested are they about it that many have conferred with colleagues, wondering if their knowledge of the English language, or rather the blind spots which occur when a person learns a new language, have caused them to misinterpret it.

It is rather obvious, for instance, that the German embassy here wired its government that the President was determined to have a place at the peace conference table. Inspired stories printed in Germany and allowed to be sent out of the country by the censors have commented on this phase.

The German reaction is that Roosevelt is anxious to bring pressure to bear at the peace table to prevent too harsh terms being imposed on the defeated Britain and France!

But this point does not interest the diplomats nearly so much as what they believe to be an intention on the part of President Roosevelt to further inflame this country against Germany and Russia. They are mildly shocked at the "lack of diplomacy" he showed in pointing out to the American people that it is of vital concern to this country that the rest of the world should not be governed by such rulers as Stalin and Hitler, particularly his insistence that it would affect even domestic affairs in this country.

Thoughts Behind Words Not Criticized by Diplomats

The diplomats are particularly excited about this sentence from the President's address: "For it becomes clearer and clearer that the future world will be a shabby and dangerous place to live in—even for Americans to live in—if it is ruled by force in the hands of a few." And they were almost as much interested in this one: "We must look ahead and see the effect of our own future if all the small nations throughout the world have their independence snatched from them or become mere appendages to relatively vast and powerful military systems."

And also: "We must look ahead and see the effect on our future generations if world trade is controlled by any nation or group of nations which sets up that control through military force."

There is no quarrel on the part of most of the diplomats, it should be stated, with the thoughts behind these words. Naturally the representatives of the smaller countries at Washington are in hearty accord with them. Naturally also the British and French are delighted, and the Finns exuberant. In fact, only the Germans and Russians are displeased.

That is not the point. The point is that they interpret the message as Roosevelt promising congress and the country solemnly that this country is going to keep out of the war, and then in the same breath saying words—almost irrefutable words, as they see them—which are inclined to pave the way to this country going into the war on the side of Britain and France and Finland.

Dewey's Speech Gets Under President's Skin

There is no doubt that the much talked about Minneapolis speech of Thomas E. Dewey got further under President Roosevelt's skin than any recent public utterance. Evidence of this is the devotion of two paragraphs in the President's "state of the union" address to congress answering Dewey's charge of "defeatism."

But it was the Chicago speech of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio which will cause more immediate trouble for the administration.

Dewey's attack hurt because it was the first time any critic had painted such a simple picture of the hopelessness of the New Deal policies. Its effect, presuming the line of attack is continued, are feared on the electorate, and in the election itself.

Taft's criticisms, on the other hand, are apt to plague the administration during the session of congress now sitting. At once New Dealers realized the danger. They rushed out chapter and verse of the answers to Taft—the impossibility of achieving the particular cuts he mentioned—the dire political consequences if these particular items are eliminated, or even reduced.

However, the actual merit of the particular cuts that Senator Taft suggested are not so important as the stirring up at all of the discussion. Best opinion here is that Taft did not help his own candidacy by voicing them. To advocate any particular cut, in the nature of things, is to antagonize a certain group in the electorate.

The trouble, from the New Deal standpoint, is that Taft has set an example. Not an example that will be followed by other candidates for the Republican nomination.

Seeks to Divert Fear of Bankruptcy and Inflation

It must be borne in mind that the essence of the Roosevelt strategy to divert the fear of bankruptcy and inflation from this campaign, and hence to remove fear that the budget will not be balanced shortly, is the new tax bill. It is not big, in proportion, but it must be had if fear is to be removed.

Well, congress doesn't want to vote new taxes. It is not inclined to make an issue of it, but it just doesn't intend to do it. Hence all the talk about budget studies by a special congressional committee—a committee that would report in 60 days, true. But what will it report? And even if it did advocate specific taxes, does anyone believe there would not be a minority report?

No, the whole thing is a scheme to defer the evil day. Which is all right from the standpoint of the individual members of congress who must face election this fall, and most of them renomination before that, but is distinctly not all right from the standpoint of a New Deal wishing to avoid alarming the country about the national debt and inflation until after next November.

"Yes," Bruce said, as if to himself. "It must have been as you say—the ghost of Jarvis came back. I myself have thought something of the kind. Thought it often. Poor Jarvis! His obsession with the past distorted all his thinking. He wrote this in a moment of—of lucidity. You should be glad he did, my dear."

"Glad?" Autumn said absently. "It alters nothing, Hector."

"On the contrary, my dear," Hector protested, "it alters much." He tapped the paper lightly with his fingers. "This is the equivalent of a retraction of everything that Jarvis had against Bruce Landor."

"Even so, Hector," Autumn said wearily. "What good can that do now?"

"It will not hurt Bruce to know that Jarvis Dean held no real bitterness in his heart toward—"

"Certainly, Hector!" Autumn broke in. "Forgive me, please! That was a selfish thought."

Hector laid the paper on the table and placed his hands awkwardly on his knees. "I see," he said softly. "What you would have preferred, perhaps, would have been your father's written consent to—"

"Oh, Hector!" Autumn interrupted again. "I wasn't thinking when I spoke."

"I can see that," he said. "The fact is, when a young woman is in love she interprets everything in the light of that one fact. Well, my dear, this retraction—small as it may seem to you—may have some bearing even on that."

Autumn looked at him and smiled resignedly. "You don't understand, darling. Bruce has made up his mind about me."

"You are sure of that?"

"I haven't told you," she said hesitantly, "about the night he came to the Parrs' lodge to tell me what had happened to father. I had gone up there earlier in the evening. Bruce found me there alone with Florian. Hannah had told him that I had gone to spend the night at the lodge. I had intended to, but Linda was to have been there, too. She became ill that day and couldn't leave home. Florian met me there—to take me back home, of course. But we had supper together in the lodge and before we were ready to leave—Bruce arrived. You know yourself what he must have thought. Florian tried to explain, but Bruce wasn't in a mood to accept his explanation."

"Hm-m," Hector said, knitting his brows. "Has Florian done nothing more about it, then?"

"Florian was incensed, of course, at Bruce's attitude. He will undoubtedly have a talk with Bruce—and force him to listen, but he's away just now on a business trip for his father. It won't make any difference to Bruce, though. You see—he had changed toward me before that."

Hector frowned and cracked his knuckles. The romances of these young creatures were too much for him. He had been given to understand that young love of the modern variety held the conventions in light esteem. Now, in his day—ah, well, in his day!

"You're a pair of young fools!" he blurted out suddenly, and poured himself another cup of tea.

Autumn got up and stood looking out of the wide spread of windows into the garden. Hector was endeavoring, she thought to herself, to bring her out of the ghastly enchantment that had imprisoned her since that dreadful night when Bruce had come for her at the lodge. Only isolated images remained in her memory of the events of that shocking time, brilliant and horrible as exploding stars. The ride home—a nightmare in which the staggering knowledge of her father's death clashed against her knowledge of Bruce's reaction to finding her alone with Florian. Then, suddenly, Hannah taking her in her arms—Hannah, white-faced and speechless. And the closed mask of a door—the door of the little back parlor, behind which her father lay. The comical little undertaker, with the cone-shaped bald head, at whose appearance Autumn had fled to her own room to scream into her pillows with hysterical laughter, until Hector had come quietly in and sat on the bed beside her. From somewhere—Hector had come. She learned later that Bruce had finally reached him by telephone. Then, in the depth of night, the moan of Saint Pat, the deep-throated, forsaken moan of Saint Pat!

Yes, Hector was trying to bring her around. It was sweet of him, of course, but where was the use of their talking any more of Bruce Landor? Bruce seemed more unguessable to her now than ever, in the numbness of her fatigue. It was difficult to remember clearly what he looked like, or to recall the timbre of his voice. It seemed years since she had seen him, severe and silent, at the entrance to the Castle, where he did not turn in after his car had escorted her and Florian home.

Autumn turned and faced Hector. "Fools?" she said. "Yes, darling—and past redemption."

He looked at her with curiously bright eyes. "Probably, my dear, probably," he replied. "What, for example, are you going to do about that—little note your father wrote into his will?"

"I don't know yet," she replied. "I should like Bruce to know about it, naturally. I shall think of some way—"

"With your permission," Hector suggested, "I shall attend to that myself. I should like to, if you don't mind. Or perhaps you would prefer to look after it in your own way."

"I'd like you to do it," she replied. "It would be simpler."

"I'll make a copy of it now, then," Hector said, and took the paper to a small desk at the end of the room where he sat and wrote while Autumn smoked a cigarette in silence.

Presently he got up and folded the sheet of paper as he came toward her. Her eyes followed him with a slow, spent interest as he thrust the paper into his pocket and drew out a slender packet tied with gold cord.

Hector unbound the packet, and with fingers strangely reverent, lifted from it a letter that lay uppermost.

"These letters," he said in a gently modulated tone, "were my reason for asking you and Bruce to dinner at my house that night. As it turned out—you could not come, but I had wanted you both to read them, even then, difficult as it was for me. These letters belonged to your mother. They were written to her by Geoffrey Landor. Before she died she entrusted them to me. I am giving them to you now so that you may read them when you are alone. In them he tells of his efforts to leave the country with his wife and son when his life here became hopelessly involved."

Autumn drew a quick breath. "You mean—he tried to get away?" she asked softly.

Hector cleared his throat with a painful hesitancy. "He did. I myself know how he tried—quite apart from anything he wrote here."

"I did not know that," she murmured.

"Your father did not tell you that, because to him it was not important," Hector went on. "Jarvis never had a true perspective of the thing that happened to him—to all of them. He was obsessed. Jealousy will drive a man to do things for which he is not altogether accountable. Your father believed it was Geoffrey's plan to leave and have Millicent join him later. But Geoffrey's property at the time was heavily burdened—and Jarvis held the bag, as we say. He had Geoffrey at his mercy."

Autumn sat on the edge of her chair, her fingers tightly interlaced in her lap. Her eyes burned fixedly upon Hector as he talked.

"I shall leave the letters with you, then, to read when you wish. But this—" he tapped lightly the letter he had selected from the packet—"this one I want you to read now—while I am with you. It was your mother's wish that I should give it to you when—and if—I should ever think it necessary to do so."

He removed a fragile, folded sheet from the yellowed envelope that enclosed it.

"Why haven't you told me about this before?" Autumn asked him.

Hector flushed painfully. "You forget, my dear, that your father was my friend. It has been difficult enough for me to decide to tell you even now. Nothing but your resolution to leave this country and spend the rest of your days in England convinced me that the time had come for me to place these letters in your hand."

He unfolded the letter and took from within it a short note that had been enclosed with the longer one.

"This," he said, handing Autumn the shorter one, "you may read before the other."

Autumn took it in trembling fingers and let her eyes dwell upon the delicate, piling script.

"Hector, my dear friend (Millicent had written), I do not think that I shall recover. Please do not forget your promise to me. I trust that the task I bequeath to you will bring you no unhappiness. In gratitude, Millicent."

With unseeing eyes, Autumn stared for moments at the slip of paper in her hand.

"Now, my dear—you may read this," Hector said, handing her the letter he held.

When at last she was able to govern her emotions, the phrases seemed to burn into her eyes with a ghostly incandescence.

"To my beloved daughter, Autumn (she read). When you read these words, if you ever do read them, it will be because Hector Cardigan has deemed it proper that you should do so. They concern things which I myself should have wished to tell you if events and circumstances had made it necessary—or possible."

"I want you to know, dear Autumn, that neither your father nor Geoffrey Landor was to blame in the unfortunate accident that took Geoffrey's life. Geoffrey had done his utmost to get away and forget me—and help me forget him. Hector can tell you why it was impossible for him to go. Since that terrible day, in the spring, your father has brooded constantly over the death of the man he once called friend. I fear that it may become an obsession from which he shall never escape. I am the one who is to blame, Autumn, if any one is to blame for hopeless love."

"I can never tell you, my darling girl, how love came to me at last, after years of groping. I can only tell you that it came, after you were born, but that I never forgot the vows that had made me the wife of your father. I can tell you, too, that love—when it is love—is a woman's whole life and being. She can never escape it though she go to the ends of the earth."

"I do not know what lies before you here. Jane Landor is a strong-willed woman and she has already made it clear that she intends to continue at her own ranch, discharge all her obligations, and bring up her boy in the valley. You and he will be growing up together, Autumn, and the time will come when you must be friends or enemies—according to the will of his mother and your father, who hate each other now. It is my wish, Autumn, that you see things clearly and without prejudice, and that you refuse to be influenced by this tragedy of the past. I should like to think that you would be a friend of Geoffrey's boy. It might help to pay the debt of your devoted mother, Millicent."

By the time Autumn had reached the end of the letter, the words were moving like a dimly silver caravan beyond her tears. The clairvoyance of the dying! Perhaps Millicent had even hoped that there might be more than friendship between her daughter and Geoffrey Landor's son—and effectuation of that destiny which had begun in her and Geoffrey. Autumn glanced across at Hector where he had seated himself again at the windows, and folded the letter pensively in her hands.

"Thank you, Hector," she said, "for showing me this."

He did not turn from the window, and Autumn laid the letter beside the packet on the table and went to him.

"You've done your part," she said, "and I'm grateful to you."

"He turned and put an arm about her. For a moment he seemed on the point of speaking. Then he patted her shoulder affectionately and turned away."

"I'll be going, I think," he said brokenly. "Come to see me."

Without another word he left her, picked up his hat from the small sofa on his way out, and walked away, his thin, straight back solidly and unflinchingly. From the windows, Autumn watched him go, her teeth biting down into her quivering lip. Then she turned and went to her room.

Bruce Landor, in loose gray flannels, swung his considerable length of limb out of his modest automobile and proceeded carelessly up the steep steps to Hector Cardigan's door. He was somewhat mystified, though he had resisted any suspicion of intrigue, by the urgency with which Hector had pressed him to come to dinner.

Hector, obviously at a tension, ushered him in, took his top coat and hat and hung them on the rather insecure rack in the hall, a rack which, Bruce supposed, one should admire as having belonged to Cleopatra, or perhaps Confucius.

"I'm glad you came, my boy," Hector said, drawing himself up solemnly and looking at Bruce with a penetrating eye. "Come along in. I have an appetizer waiting for you."

"Right, Hector!" Bruce said, following his host into the dining room where one end of a long refectory table of solid, gloomy old oak was spread tastily with fine linen and silver and china, and a surprising array of edibles.

Bruce had here, always, a disconcerting feeling that he was about to see the wraiths of antiquity emerge from the draperies on the walls and repossess with jealous hands these treasures that furnished Hector's home.

He stood by while Hector filled two glasses, one of which he handed his guest with a courtly bow.

"To good fellowship, my boy!" Hector proposed, and held his glass for Bruce to touch it with his own.

They drained their glasses at once and Bruce held his forward with a smile.

"One more, Hector—to the spirits of the past!" He waved a hand toward the tapestried walls as he spoke.

Hector looked at him quickly, then filled the glasses again with an excitement in his movements that caused Bruce to wonder. But he smiled across the top of his glass as he bowed once more to Bruce and drank.

"Well," he said, when the glasses were empty again, "you must be ready for supper, my boy. Let's sit in."

"I hope I shall never be hungrier," Bruce replied and took the chair to which his host invited him with a wave of the hand.

The wine was excellent, as were the cold meats and the salads. Hector's first excitement seemed to subside as the meal progressed, and he talked in a leisurely fashion. They talked of Jarvis Dean's death and the impressive funeral that had followed, of the Dean estate and of Autumn's plans to live in England—but always in an impersonal tone that gave Bruce no hint of what was in the old man's mind.

When they rose from the table, Hector spread a cloth tidily over the dishes and led Bruce into the drawing room, closing the dining room door behind him.

"The skeletons will be at the feast," Bruce thought, smiling to himself.

The evening having turned cool, Hector had kindled a small blaze of pine logs in the Dutch tiled fireplace, and now they seated themselves before it with their brandy and cigarettes.

"I suppose you would be uncomfortable in the presence of modern furniture," Bruce remarked, glancing idly about the room. "You have lived so long with the ghosts of the past."

A strange glow warmed Hector's eyes. "In more ways than one, my boy," he observed pointedly. "But I have never permitted my ghosts to haunt me. That Elizabethan wine-cup, now—" he pointed to an elaborately wrought chalice that stood on the top of a china closet—"who knows but what the death of some gallant courtier may have been drunk from its brim? But does it make the cup less beautiful, less precious to our time?"

"Rather not," Bruce replied. "On the contrary—"

"The past," Hector said, warming to his subject, "is a dim avenue down which we may walk and find the diverging paths of terror and beauty and passion. If we stand at the entrance to that avenue and peer within, remote times telescope into our own immediate past, so that with clear eyes we may note that the events of antiquity and of a few decades ago have the same values. Or do you follow me, sir?"

Bruce regarded his host with mounting curiosity.

"I believe I do," Bruce said, swept involuntarily into Hector's stately mood.

Hector waved a fine brown hand toward the Sphinx tapestry on the wall to their left. "The accomplished fact of the past," he continued, "may be compared to a tapestry like that—upon which we can look with disinterested sympathy and compassion and admiration at the quaint desires and ambitions and tragedies and loves of our forefathers. To the rational mind even a generation ago is such a tapestry, my boy."

Hector was leading studiously to something. His oratory was not without a definite object, of that Bruce was sure. He settled himself in his chair and resolved to wait patiently for the disclosure of his purpose.

"Do you remember that line from The Tempest? 'What's past is prologue.' You will excuse me," he apologized suddenly, "I am an old man—and given to romantic indulgences."

Bruce smiled. "Go ahead, Hector! I've had some such ideas in my own mind, though I've never been able to put them into words."

Hector favored him with a shrewd glance. "Of course you have, my boy. Of course you have! You have thought of the past that lies behind you, no doubt—your own father's death, for example."

Bruce tossed his cigarette into the fire. "It was that I had in mind, Hector," he admitted.

There was a brief silence in which Hector leaned forward and turned his brandy glass thoughtfully about in his fingers.

"Would you mind it very much if I asked you something about that?" he said finally.

"There is nothing much that I can tell you, Hector," Bruce replied. "You probably know more about it than I do."

"Have you any very clear opinion concerning how your father came to his death?" Hector asked abruptly.

"I have understood that he took his own life—because of his love for—for another woman," Bruce returned.

"You know that?"

"I have put two and two together, Hector," Bruce replied bluntly. "I know they were in love—the rest I have guessed."

JESUS DRAMATICALLY PROCLAIMS HIS MESSIAHSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, thy King cometh unto thee.—Matthew 21:5.

The official presentation of Himself to the Jewish people as their King, their rejection of Him, and what was even more solemnly meaningful, His rejection of the Hebrew nation because of unbelief—such are the stirring events which face us as we enter with our Lord into the last week of His earthly life. The first event in that sequence is the one we study in our lesson for today, namely, the coming of the King to Jerusalem. Jesus on this occasion did a very dramatic and unusual thing, a fact which indicates that here is an incident of extraordinary import to which we do well to give careful study.

I. Preparation and Presentation (vv. 1-7).

The King comes, but even in His hour of royal triumph He gives to His followers the unexplainable but inestimable joy of meeting His need.

1. "The Lord Hath Need" (vv. 1-4). He had need of disciples who would do His bidding without question or hesitation—"and the disciples went, and did even as Jesus had appointed them" (v. 6). How precious is such obedience! Let us also go and do what He commands.

He needed the colt and the ass. How simple and lowly was that need, and yet how glorious that a man was ready to meet it! God's plans are worked out in the little things as well as the great. Prophecy was being fulfilled here (see v. 5) by a little thing. Is God waiting to carry out some great purpose through some little thing which you are withholding from Him? Why hinder Him any longer?

2. "Behold Thy King Cometh" (vv. 5-7). Though He did not come with the pomp and trappings of an earthly potentate, the King of Glory came to His people to offer them for the last time the opportunity to receive Him. He asks you to yield your life to His kingship. What will your answer be?

II. Acceptance and Rejection (vv. 8-11, 15, 16).

1. "The Multitude . . . Cried . . . Hosanna" (vv. 8-11). The fact that before the week was over many of the same voices cried, "Crucify Him!" should not obscure the fact that there were childlike believers (v. 16) who really had faith in Christ. There is something inspiring about that picture of enthusiasm and devotion. Real faith in Christ ought to result in a fervor of spirit which will stir our hearts and our cities. Are we not altogether too dead and formal in much of our worship today? Do we not need more holy enthusiasm for Christ and for His Church?

2. "The Chief Priests and Scribes . . . Were Sore Displeased" (vv. 15, 16). Small wonder, for not only had the children put them to open shame by recognizing the Christ whom they had ignored, but He had in turn ruined their polite religious racket which produced for them such a lovely profit. Mark this—when anyone is displeased with Jesus or with His true children or with His work on earth, you can be sure that there is a reason, and not a holy, upright or good reason either!

III. Judgment and Compassion (vv. 12-14).

What a remarkable picture! In the midst of flaming judgment and destruction we find loving compassion upon the blind and the lame. Folk who think that Christ has no message but love need to look on Him as He cleanses the temple. On the other hand, those who think that He has no word but judgment need to behold Him as He stands in the midst of the overturned tables and debris and heals the needy. Inconsistent? Not at all. God is love, but He is also absolute holiness.

1. "Jesus Cast Out . . . and Overthrew" (vv. 12, 13). He knew where to begin to cleanse the city. He started in the temple. Absolutely right is the man who suggested that the place to start to clean up a city is not in the slums but in the churches. You will be ready to clean out the tavern or that other low place where the gang hangs out in your town after you have cleaned out the church. The same is true of the individual. A regenerated heart will bring a reformed life, not vice versa.

2. "He Healed Them" (v. 14). The very hands which had just overturned the tables and cast out the money-changers now gently touched the lame and the blind with healing. The eyes which had blazed with holy indignation now shone with love and compassion. The scene of judgment and chaos became the house of prayer and of answered prayer. On the very spot where one man had received condemnation, another received healing. Each one received that which he sought by his action. How will you, my dear reader, meet Jesus—as your Judge or as your Saviour? You must make the choice.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

For a breakfast treat, mix cinnamon and sugar and spread on hot buttered toast.

Easy to Remove Stopper.—Dip the stopper of a mulligan bottle in paraffin before putting it into the bottle and it will not stick.

Frozen Meat.—Meat thawed quickly is likely to be tough. Keep frozen meat in warm place before cooking.

A porous pot allows water to evaporate and this is a bad feature in warm dry houses. Plants in clay pots tend to develop a root system between the soil and the pot with very few roots in the soil itself.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Cook County Assessor's Report

The assessed value of real estate in the thirty country townships of Cook County totals $353,142,510 for the quadrennial assessment year 1939, it was announced today by Assessor John S. Clark when books for the third group of ten townships were delivered to the county clerk. This represents a full value of $954,439,217. The assessed value is 37 per cent of the full value.

The 1939 assessment is $22,766,475 higher than the 1938 assessment in the country towns and $25,231,429 higher than that for the quadrennial assessment of 1935.

Increase in building in Cook county, which was greater in suburban areas than in the city, is the principal cause of the higher realty values.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 21.

The Golden Text was, "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son" (1 John 5:11).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon are the following from the Bible: "O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard: Which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved" (Psalms 66:8, 9).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life, and time is no part of eternity. One ceases in proportion as the other is recognized. Time is infinite; eternity is forever infinite. Life is neither in nor of matter. What is termed matter is unknown to Spirit, which includes in itself all substance and is Life eternal" (p. 468-9).

NEW LENOX

He is survived by his widow and five daughters; Mrs. Larry Herman, Muskegon, Mich.; Mrs. George Bennet, Mokena; Mrs. John Burmaster, Chicago Heights; Misses Juanita and Wilma Oglesby, Steger; and one son, Edward, Steger. The Oglesbys were at one time residents of Frankfort.

Mrs. Joe Scott underwent a major operation in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, January 20.

The Independent basketball teams were defeated by St. Peter's Lutheran team, Joliet, Sunday, January 20, in very good games. They will play the Wilmington teams on January 28. The Grade school teams will play Manteno here tonight, while the High school team plays New Lenox.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smit have moved into the home of Mr. Bartel Heisner for the winter.

The housewives will be very busy next week attending the cooking school held in the Rialto theatre in Joliet.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist church will have their next meeting in the social room of the church on February 1. They plan on having a pot luck luncheon with a Valentine party in connection.

The Martha Sewing Circle of St. Peter's Evang. and Ref. church will be entertained on February 1 in the home of Mrs. Katherine Lankenau. They will sew all day.

The Royal Neighbors will have their installation of officers on February 1, at 6:30 o'clock, in the new village hall.

The Frankfort Civic club is busy making plans to sponsor the Boy Scout celebration that the local Troop are planning to give. The entire community should be interested in the project enough to keep watch for the exact date, which as yet has not been set.

Both young and old are enjoying skating now as the Lankenau field has been flooded for this sport.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many relatives, friends, and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of my wife and mother. For the beautiful floral offerings, use of cars so kindly donated, and Rev. G. S. Gerhold for his comforting words, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Faulkner for their songs.

MR. BARTEL HEISNER and MR. and MRS. GEORGE KRATZ-ENBURG and family.

LAND REGISTRATION

In most states the title to land is not made a matter of public instruments affecting title are recorded, for the most part, in the county court house, but abstract companies and title examiners must be employed to see if a merchantable title exists.

In 1897 the Illinois legislature approved an act concerning land titles. This act made available to counties able to procure the necessary approval through petition and referendum, a method of land title registration known as the "Torrens System," named after the Australian who devised it. The general purpose of the system has been described by the Illinois courts as follows:

"The basic principle of the Torrens System is the registration of the title to land, instead of registering, as under the old system, the evidence of such title.

"The object is to create an independent system of registration of land titles, and cause all instruments intended for the purpose of passing or affecting any title to real estate to be filed and registered in that department and no other."

In Illinois is question of adoption of the system must be presented to the voters of the county. In Cook county 2,500 legal voters may petition to have it submitted to vote; in other counties of the state, one-half of the legal voters must petition. Under the present provision with respect to petition for submission to vote, it is very difficult for a county to even have the issue submitted. Cook county adopted the plan many years ago, and a substantial percentage of the land in that county is now registered.

The registration of title is accomplished by a proceeding in court. The owner first submits a written and sworn application to the judge of the circuit court, containing certain facts required by the act. The application may then be referred to an examiner of title for his check and approval. A summons is issued to all parties who may have an interest, making them defendants in the proceedings. The court then hears the case and enters a decree of title in those to whom it has been shown that title belongs. The decree becomes binding, except that an appeal may be made in other cases. A certificate of title is issued, and the registrar is required to keep a "Register of Title" for the county, containing all certificates.

An indemnity fund is provided to settle claims not disposed of in the proceedings, and provisions are made for transfers and charges, tax sales, cancellation of certificates and other special conditions affecting registered land.

Many students of the problem feel that the Torrens System is a simple, economical, effective way of handling land titles and that it should supplant the present system. Others feel that there would be no advantage in adopting it. The development of photomicrography, a system allowing long documents to be photographed, reduced scale and stored as negatives in a small space, should simplify the present system of keeping records. Proponents of land registration will still maintain, however, that the public is entitled to have its appropriate government agencies issue certificates of title to land.

The act concerning land registration may be found in the Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 30, Sections 45-152.

ORLAND PARK

Word comes from St. Petersburg, Florida that Mrs. Stephen Sayers has been ill and is a patient of a local hospital.

Cards have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Beagley, who are enjoying a vacation trip in Florida. They report the weather warm and the famed Florida sunshine is being much enjoyed. They expect to return soon.

Another Orland resident who is enjoying a winter in Florida is Louis Rashke.

The county highway department is buying up additional land along Keane Avenue, from 143rd St. north to Swallow Cliff in Palos, in order to make this a 100-ft. right of way. Keane Avenue is to be repaved and widened to a four lane road from 143rd St. north to Swallow Cliff. This work will be done sometime next summer, it is reported.

The Orland Park school basketball teams are playing in the Beecher Basketball Tournament this week. The tournament is being played in the Beecher school Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

The Orland Park Legion Post held their monthly meeting Tuesday night.

The card party held in the St. Michael church hall Saturday night was well attended, in spite of the cold weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kay are escaping the rigors of winter by vacationing in Tucson, Arizona.

Harry Berlin, of Lemont, who recently opened a local agency for the Golden Rule Cleaners in the Davidson Bldg., has another new service to offer, in the line of shoe repair. Shoes to be repaired can be left at the local agency.

The PTA meeting which had been slated for last Thursday evening had to be postponed due to the extremely cold weather. An elaborate program had been worked up and speccial speakers from the state highway police department had been secured to speak on "Safety." The PTA hopes to be able to present this program at a later date.

The meeting of the village board Monday night was taken up chiefly with the Collins subdivision improvements. The village water mains are to be extended through this property and Main Street is also to be opened through the subdivision. The board engaged Engineer Hancock of Chicago to prepare estimates on the cost of the proposed improvements. The zoning committee made a report on the re-zoning matter on Keane Avenue, and the board concurred in the action of the zoning committee favoring re-zoning of certain portions of that territory for business purposes.

A group of Orland PTA members attended a PTA council meeting in Stickney last Wednesday night.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Cooper, Chicago Ridge, a seven and one half pound daughter, last Sunday, in the Little Company of Mary hospital. Mrs. Cooper was formerly Grace Lange of Worth. The infant has been named Patricia Ann. Both mother and child are doing nicely. The new arrival came as a birthday gift, being born on Mrs. Cooper's birthday.

HOW MANY CONGRESSMEN PER STATE?

There are 435 Congressmen. The number is set by statute. There have been that number since 1910. In theory, there is one Congressman for each 279,712 persons. This factor is derived by dividing the population of the state by 435. Taking the population of each state and dividing it by 279,712 indicates the number of Congressmen to which each state is entitled. All this, however, was back in 1910. Since then the population has increased very substantially. In some states it has increased more than others. This would mean that on the basis of today's population, some states have a larger delegation in Congress while other states should have their delegation reduced. Obviously, no state wants its Congressional representation diminished and therefore rebels at the idea. In 1929, Congress enacted a law under which the re-apportionment of Representatives in Congress became automatic. It provided that the census for 1940, should begin on April 1, 1940 and that the President should certify the results to the second regular session of the 76th Congress together with his calculation of how many Congressmen should go to each state. Now comes the trouble. After the enactment of the 1929 law, the 20th amendment to the Constitution was adopted under which the "second regular session of the 76th Congress" came into session January 3, 1940. But the census is not under way yet. Hence the President cannot carry out the provisions of the 1929 act. He has, therefore, asked for an amendment to the law so that it can be done. But the states which might have their delegations reduced don't like the idea, and hence they are already preparing to do battle. Since re-apportionment does not effect the Senate, the battle will be fought out in the House of Representatives.

INADEQUATE WIRING AND OUTLET STARVATION!

Better take advantage of today's low prices and terms on wiring and outlets

HERE ARE THE SYMPTOMS:

DIM LIGHTS—If your lights fade when you attach an iron or some other electric aid, or if the iron takes too long to heat—that's a sure sign that your present wiring is inadequate.

BLACKOUTS—In many cases such overloading of the circuit results in a complete blackout of all lights and appliances. Then a new fuse must be installed, but the same thing may happen again.

CORD NESTS—A sure symptom of insufficient outlets. Caused by trying to plug in lamps, radio, iron and electric train all on one outlet. Very inconvenient—and unnecessary.

... AND HERE IS THE CURE!

See your wiring contractor or Public Service Company representative—ask about the special low prices and terms that make it easy to have modern, adequate wiring and additional electric outlets in your home.

WHY gamble! Why try to get along on wiring that's out of date and fails to deliver enough electricity for your needs? It's not only inconvenient, but costly, too. For when you draw too much current from one circuit at one time, you lose power along the wire—and fail to get all the electricity you pay for....Your friendly electrical contractor has an easy remedy for just such a condition. See him—ask about installing one or two appliance circuits to an adequate number of electric wall outlets. It's not an elaborate task—and the cost is now amazingly low!

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

Primary Room

The attendance was 91.2 per cent for the last month in Miss Snure's room, with four people tardy.

Intermediate Room

Irving Holm has been absent due to illness. Hurry back, Irvin. Shirley Nelson has also been among those missing from our ranks.

The intermediate room played host Monday to Arleen Hacker, a visitor from Joliet's A. O. Marshall school.

The attendance percentage for the last month was 94.5, with one tardy.

Junior High School

96.2 per cent of the total enrollment were in attendance last month while one person was tardy.

High School

We would like you to meet Lillian Hellmuth, a pretty sophomore, who is 5 feet 7 inches tall, has grey eyes light brown hair, and a sparkling smile. These are among her favorites—song: "Deep Purple" movie star: Richard Greene (we wonder why, maybe its because he looks like a certain Orland Park boy) book: Book M., World Book Encyclopedia (any inquisitive person may find the mentioned subject on pages 4299, h300-01) period: recess. Her idea of a perfect man is one 5 feet 11 inches tall with dark wavy hair, grey eyes, and who all in all, is tall and handsome.

The High-school pupils had their semi-final examinations last week, therefore they had school only part of the day. They liked it but did the Junior High room? Well, you guess.

It is rumored that most of the high boys are two-timing all of the girls. If this means you, watch out. They are getting wise and most of them are giving you a dose of your own medicine.

Monday night the most exciting basketball game of the season occurred. With only a few seconds left to play, Edward Tierney made a basket, tying the score. In the overtime session, Jack Nordell came through with a basket and the crowd became delirious. Matteson scored a tying basket but Jack came back with another ringer. The end of the period found Mokena the winner.

Cheerleaders during the recent game were Virginia Nebeker, Jean Rueckert, Jean Shevlin, and Lois Guindon.

Yours truly heard Catherine Reid had a swell time in Blue Island last week-end. With all the girls, of course! Ha! Ha!

We would like to express our sympathy to the Bennetts, who recently lost their grandfather, a resident of Steger for many years.

News hawks for the week were Gerald Bennett, Hobart Meyer, and Bob Homerding.

The high school attendance for last month was 96.3 per cent, with 5 tardy cases.

So-long, see you February 2.

Farmers Face Regulation of Trucks March 1

Farmers and other Illinois truck owners have until March 1 to comply with the Illinois Truck Act, according to information received by the Cook County Farm Bureau from the Illinois Agricultural Association.

In order to comply, each truck must pass a safety test and be covered by an insurance policy providing public liability and property damage insurance, or show other financial responsibility. The name and address of the owner and the weight of the empty equipment must be plainly lettered on all trucks, tractors, and trailers used in the transportation of goods on roads of the state.

Under the new law, no driver or helper will be permitted to operate a truck longer than 12 hours in any 24-hour period, nor to be on duty longer than 15 hours in any 24-hour period.

Trucks for hire will be required to obtain a certificate permit or registration number which must also be painted on the equipment. This provision applies to farmers who occasionally haul for hire.

Certificates verifying that trucks are properly insured will be placed on file with the Department of Public Works and Buildings, Division of Motor Carriers, by insurance companies. Application for permits can be secured at no cost in any of the 13 district offices now established in State Police Headquarters.

Plans indicate that offices to handle business of the motor carriers division will be set up in county seats. Garages and service stations are now qualifying as official testing stations to inspect safety devices required by law for trucks and to issue windshield stickers certifying that the vehicles have passed the test.

Purposes of the new law are to remove danger hazards due to operation of trucks mechanically unfit for service and to insure the financial responsibility by the motor carriers by eliminating ruinous competition within the trucking industry.

MOKENA

A group of Mokena piano pupils of Mrs. Esther Davies took part in a piano recital presented by the pupils of Mrs. Davies in the Richard Street Methodist church in Joliet Sunday afternoon. Thirty-six pupils participated in the program and many of the pupils showed outstanding musical talent.

Those from Mokena taking part in the recital were Shirley Marti, Eleanor Hostert, Anita Gauthier, Dorothy Ann Rauch, Ursula and Gunter Thiel, Mrs. Margaret Thiel, Joseph, Charlotte and Barbara Gee. Special merit pins were presented to a number of pupils. After the recital tea, coffee and cocoa was served in the church dining room.

Mrs. Philip Hacker, Sr., has been ill with heart trouble the past week but is somewhat improved.

Mrs. George Koeller Sr., returned last Wednesday from Milwaukee, Wis., where she had been visiting with her daughter, Almira, and husband.

Leonard Bruder expects to leave Sunday on a month's vacation trip, taking in Seattle, Wash., California, and other Pacific coast points and returning via the southern route.

Col. Don C. Hall has been ill the past several weeks and is now somewhat improved.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to neighbors and friends for kindness shown in our recent bereavement, especially Rev. Haeefe for the comforting words and Mrs. Haeefe and Mrs. Mall for the beautiful music; also all those who donated their cars and services.

SCOUT NEWS

The weekly meeting of the Mokena Scout Troop was called to order Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Nine members and one visitor were present. One of the scouts demonstrated artificial respiration, after which every one was shown the correct procedure by the Scoutmaster and his assistant. This was followed by a thirty minute drill, after which games were enjoyed. "Buck Buck," a new game just introduced, was played. The game is a great favorite with the boys. Another basketball night was discussed, and will be decided upon by next Monday. The meeting was adjourned at 9:15 o'clock by the Scoutmaster's benediction.

Sports Show at Navy Pier on February 3-11

To sports lovers in the Chicago communities, suburbs and areas, each year comes the same perennial urge to plan for the out-of-door season. About that time another hardy perennial, the National Boat and Sport Show, appears on the scene. This year the famous exposition, playing its 11th straight annual run, will be bigger, better and earlier than before. The new dates are February 3 to 11 inclusive, as announced by Hubbard H. Erickson, manager, includes two Saturdays and two Sundays, giving everyone an opportunity to get to Navy Pier several times if desired.

From the small exposition of boats in 1928, the show has expanded until today the entire length of the exhibition hall on the Pier is utilized and about 120 exhibitors will display their best brain children to interest and attract the sports-loving public. It is a show of action too, with amateur sports being participated in by hundreds of visitors and thousands more taking an eager interest in the demonstrations of skill.

The great out-of-doors states of Minnesota (including the Arrowhead Ass'n.), Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois, are arranging unusual exhibits at the Pier which will include the showing of much wild life from bears and deer down to "birds of plumage" and rabbits. These states will have special days starting with Illinois Day, Sunday, February 4. Governors and other officials of the states always visit the Pier.

Beautiful models wearing the latest costumes for swimming, fishing, hunting, skiing, archery and other sports will make personal appearances each day and evening of the show, and the Queen of the Great Lakes will be selected during the event from among the fair sex members of the Chicago area yachting clubs.

There will be fly and bait casting, rifle and pistol shooting, and the newly popular rifle and skeet shooting, as well as golf ball driving and other sports.

The exhibit of boats has grown each year until this year more than 35 manufacturers will have the latest models ranging from giant cabin cruisers down to kayaks on display. Even the landlover likes boats, it seems, and enjoys wistful hours inspecting the tidy crafts on display at Navy Pier.

Then there are the exhibits of sports equipment, radios, trailers, and boat accessories, and many fine booths showing model boats and nautical developments.

"With the attendance increasing each year and the number of exhibitors following suit it is safe to declare that the National Boat and Sport Show has become a Chicago-land institution," said Manager Erickson. "It is our attempt to give the hundreds of thousands of sports lovers in this area the sort of show they like and the fact that many people never miss the Boat and Sport Show at Navy Pier indicates that Chicagoans are always interested in the great out-of-doors which Nature has provided for them on land and waters of the Mid-west."

SERVE A MODEEN FRUIT PIE AND A CANDY RAIL FENCE IN HONOR OF LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

See Recipes Below

For Patriotic Parties

February, with its two famous birthdays, is a grand month for a patriotic party—with novel decorations and unusual foods, to help make it a success.

Lincoln, the biographers tell us, had a keen "sweet tooth." Children could always be sure he'd have a bag of bonbons in his pocket when he dropped in to visit. Fruit pies were favorites with him, too, so you'll be historically correct to feature a fruit pie when you plan your Lincoln's birthday menu.

"Chocolate Fence Rails" are a novel sweet that will pay double tribute to Lincoln's rail splitting fame and his "sweet tooth." Use three of the fence rails tied in a bundle with a bit of red, white, and blue ribbon, for individual table favors at your party.

Everyone knows the significance of cherry pie at a Washington's birthday party, of course, but few people know that cherry pie à la mode has a double historical meaning! George Washington has been credited, by some historians, with being the inventor of the first ice cream freezer.

You'll find suggestions for almost any kind of party you can name, in my booklet "Easy Entertaining." There are ideas for unusual menus, hints on party short-cuts, too, and a store of practical, tested recipes. With Valentine's day and Easter, ahead, and birthdays in the offing, you'll want to add this useful, inexpensive booklet to your kitchen library.

Lincoln's Birthday Menu.

Salad Sandwich Rolls
Potato chips
Olive
Apricot Pie
Magic Chocolate Logs
Coffee

Menu for a Washington's Birthday Party.

Individual Sandwich Loaves
Potato chips
Sweet pickles
Cherry Tarts with vanilla ice cream
Reception Cocoa

Salad Roll Sandwich.

Slit long, plump, soft rolls down the center, not quite through. Scoop out a little of the inside. Brush with melted butter, and heat. Stuff with any desired salad sandwich spread. (Don't try to push the sides of the sandwich together again!) Serve on a lettuce leaf, and garnish with olives.

Magic Chocolate Logs.

1 square unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup sweetened condensed milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cup sifted confectioners' (4x) sugar
½ cup coconut (toasted)
Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk and stir over rapidly boiling water five minutes or until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Add vanilla and confectioners' sugar gradually and blend thoroughly. Shape into rolls, two inches long. Roll in toasted coconut. Allow to stand in cold place several hours or until firm. Makes about two dozen.

Apricot Pie.

1½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter (melted)
2 cups cooked dried apricots (drained)
½ cup canned crushed pineapple (drained)
1 cup apricot juice
1 recipe pie crust
Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, butter, fruit, and fruit juices; let stand 15 minutes, or while pastry is being made. Line 9-inch pie plate with about ½ of pastry, rolled ⅛ inch thick, allowing pastry to extend 1 inch beyond edge. Fold edge back to form standing rim. Fill with apricot mixture. Moisten edge of pie with cold water and arrange layout of pastry stars across top. Flute rim with fingers. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) 10 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 35 minutes longer. Cool. Serve with or without whipped cream. For a gala dessert, top with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

Potato Chips.

4 medium sized potatoes
2 or 3 pounds fat
Salt

Pare and cut potatoes into very thin slices. Allow sliced potatoes to stand in ice water until firm (about 1 hour). Heat fat to 375 degrees. Blot potatoes dry with a clean towel and place potato slices in French fry basket. Immerse basket in hot fat by handle. Keep potatoes moving constantly so that the slices do not stick together. Remove basket and drain potatoes on brown paper. Sprinkle with salt. Temperature: 375 degrees; Time: 2 minutes or to desired brownness.

Individual Sandwich Loaves.

Cut 2½-inch rounds from thinly sliced white bread, allowing 4 rounds for each sandwich. Brush one side of each round of bread with soft butter. Leave 1 round of buttered bread plain to be used for the top layer. Spread each of the remaining rounds with a different sandwich filling, varying both the flavor and the color. These two combinations are good.

1. Watercress or shredded lettuce
Ground ham, sweet pickle, and mayonnaise
Deviled egg sandwich spread
2. Olive-nut filling
Minced pimento mixed with softened butter
Sardine sandwich spread

"Frost" the top and sides of each sandwich with cream cheese, moistened to spreading consistency with a little salad dressing. On top, arrange a sprig of watercress and a slice of stuffed olive, to resemble a flower. Serve on lettuce leaf with small, sweet pickles.

Cherry Tarts.

3 cups red pitted cherries (with juice)
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter
Drain juice from cherries and heat to boiling point. Mix sugar, flour, cornstarch, and salt, and add to the cherry juice. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool slightly and add lemon juice, butter and cherries. Pour into baked pastry tart shells. Serve with whipped cream.

'Noname,' Author Of Famed Nickel Novels, Is Dead

Luis P. Senarens Was the Creator of Fabulous Frank Reade Jr.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

RECENTLY the newspapers throughout the country printed a brief press association dispatch which said:

NEW YORK.—Luis P. Senarens, seventy-six years old, often called the "American Jules Verne," who wrote 1,500 dime novels under 27 pseudonyms between 1876 and 1910, died from heart trouble yesterday in Kings county hospital. Senarens, who began his extraordinary career at the age of fourteen, created the fabulous Frank Reade and forecast in fiction many modern mechanical developments.

Son of an immigrant Cuban tobacco merchant, Senarens got his inspiration as a boy from visiting the Philadelphia Centennial exposition in 1876. At sixteen he was earning $200 a week and at thirty he became president of the Frank Tousey Publication company, which published all his works.

Thus was revealed, for the first time perhaps, to thou-the Air" was a cigar-shaped balloon that resembled a modern Zeppelin. Suspended below it by slings was the hull of a ship, complete with a rudder at the stern and a searchlight at the bow. Thus it was a combined ship of the air and ship of the sea, or in other words a sort of driven by two propellers, below which is suspended a land-boat with a hull similar to that on the "Monitor of the Air" but equipped with four wheels on which it could "taxi" along the ground in landing or taking off.

Perhaps the most extraordinary invention of this ingenious youth was his "Clipper of the Prairie," which was a sort of a cross between a war tank and a trailer home on wheels and which Frank used for "Fighting the Apaches in the Far Southwest." Above the cabin, or living quarters, was an observation platform on which were built two turrets and in front of the cabin was mounted a good-sized cannon.

If the "red devils" escaped destruction by the shots from this cannon, they could be impaled upon a sharp ram-like projection from the front of the "clipper." This ram was also useful in getting a supply of fresh meat for Frank and his friends, for the picture on the cover of this particular volume indicates that it was used also for impaling buffalo! Incidentally the "clipper" was propelled by steam on caterpillar-tread wheels which indicates that our "modern" caterpillar tractors are "old stuff."

According to Edmund Pearson in his "Dime Novels; or, Following an Old Trail in Popular Literature" (published by Little, Brown and Company in 1929), the Frank Tousey firm of which Senarens was president in addition to the Frank Reade Weekly, also issued "Work and Win" with its hero, Fred Farnot; the "Wild West Weekly" with Young Wild West and his sweetheart, Arietta; "Secret Service" with Old King Brady and Young King Brady; and "Pluck and Luck." The Old King Brady stories, he says, "are attributed to Francis Worcester Doughty, who, curiously, was the author of works on numismatics and archeology."

Pearson does not give the authorship of the other Frank Tousey publications but it is not unlikely that Senarens, who was the "Noname" of the Frank Reade Jr. yarns, also wrote most of the others under one of the 27 pseudonyms mentioned in the obituary story quoted at the beginning of this article.

sands of Americans the identity of one of their favorite authors back in the days of their youth when they tasted of forbidden fruit be revelling in the adventures of Fred Farnot, Young Wild West, Old King Brady and especially Frank Reade Jr. For this brief obituary item unmasked, at last, the mysterious, tantalizing "Noname" whose imagination conjured up for the use of the ingenious Frank a host of mechanical marvels which seemed weirdly improbable then but are commonplace enough today.

We are greatly impressed when modern science and inventive skill produces a "mechanical man" who can speak and give the correct answer to problems propounded to him when the right buttons are pressed. But back in 1890 Frank Reade Jr. had an "electrical man" who could do most of those things. If Henry Ford and the other motor car makers had read more of "Noname's" nickel novels, the course of automobile design might have been far different. For Frank Reade Jr. had a horse made of steel with jointed legs, driven by a steam engine inside. This animal was attached to a solid-tired vehicle in the same location where the automakers attached an engine covered with a "hood" of steel.

Four years later Frank Reade was staging a race around the world for a purse of $10,000. He was piloting his flying boat, which is amazingly like a modern autogiro, and his opponent in the race was Jack Wright, diving through the seas in his submarine which had a neat, glass-enclosed conning tower. In fact, Frank was a most versatile designer of flying machines. His "Monitor of forecast of our modern seaplanes. By the next year, 1895, Frank had had another idea for air travel. "Noname" called it "Frank Reade Jr.'s Greatest Flying Machine" in which he set out for a bit of "Fighting the Terror of the Coast." The picture on the front cover of this nickel thriller shows a large biplane,

Make an Heirloom Crazypatch Quilt

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE oldest of quilt designs is the crazypatch, yet there is something amazingly modern in its angular lines. A variety of embroidery stitches join the pieces, of plain and figured silks. Several colors of silk embroidery thread are generally used. When a number of patches have been basted in place, sew them down to the foundation with the embroidery stitches and then remove the bastings. The backing is tied to the front with silk embroidery thread as comforters are tied. Little or no padding may be used and a plain band around the edge is effective.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared patterns and directions for making three of her favorite Early American Quilt Blocks which she will mail upon receipt of name and address and 10 cents coin to cover cost. Her Sewing Booklet No. 2 contains illustrations for 42 embroidery stitches suitable for patch work quilts; also pattern with directions for making the framed picture embroidery sketched on the wall in illustration above. Also numerous gift items: mittens, neck ties; bags; table decorations; and 5 ways to repair fabrics. To get this book, send 10 cents in coin to Mrs. Spears, Drawer 10, Bedford Hills, New York.
